

B A R L A V E N T O

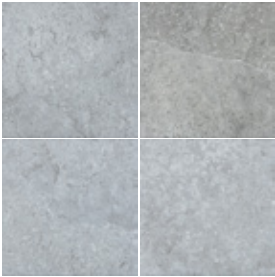

Barlavento is the windward side — where the wind arrives first — and the name carried by a group of Caribbean islands shaped by water. Here, coral reefs meet volcanic rock. Small fossils disappear into pale sand. Sunlight moves across the seabed, and the water shifts between translucent shallows, mineral greens and deep Caribbean blues. It is this landscape — and the extraordinary way nature gives color to water — that inspired Barlavento.
